Epistemic Injustice in the Aftermath of Collective Wrongdoing

Workshop | Friday-Saturday | Dec 6-7, 2019 | University of Bern | Hochschulstrasse 4 | Room 028

Invited Speakers

Maria Baghramian (University College Dublin)

Jennifer Lackey (Northwestern University)

José Medina (Northwestern University)

Gaile Pohlhaus (Miami University)

I invite papers on the topic of epistemic injustice broadly conceived, including testimonial injustice, hermeneutical injustice and ignorance, either applied to a case study of collective wrongdoing such as crimes against humanity, or more general theoretical and conceptual issues related to epistemic injustice. Please prepare abstract submissions (PDF, max. 1000 words in English) for blind review: the author's name, affiliation, the title of the submitted paper, and e-mail address must be included in a separate document. Deadline for abstracts: 30 April 2019 | Notifications: End of May | Deadline for selected papers (max. 5000 words): 15 September 2019

Organized by | Melanie Altanian | melanie.altanian@philo.unibe.ch | in cooperation with the Institute of Philosophy | University of Bern
