Friday, 6 December:

10:10 – 11:00  Identifying Epistemic Injustice
              Echo chambers, Ignorance and Domination
              Bruno R. G. Santos, University of Mato Grosso

11:00 – 11:50  Thinking Epistemic Injustice from the Global South: Genocide-denial, Silencing and Collective Ignorance in Turkey
              Image Oranli, Arizona State University

12:00 – 12:50  Genocide Denial as Testimonial Oppression
              Melanie Altanian, University of Bern

14:20 – 15:10  False Confessions, the Criminal Justice System, and Testimonial Injustice
              Jennifer Lackey, Northwestern University

15:10 – 16:00  Capital Vices, Institutional Failures, and Epistemic Neglect in a County Jail
              José Medina, Northwestern University

16:15 – 17:05  Epistemic Injustice and Indigenous Peoples in the Inter-American Human Rights System
              Dina Townsend, University of Tilburg
              Leo Townsend, University of Vienna

Saturday, 7 December:

10:00 – 10:50  The Significance of Intellectual Self-Trust – Individual and Collective – in Tackling Epistemic Injustice
              Nadja El Kassar, University of Zurich

10:50 – 11:40  Can Empathy Have a Role in Countering Epistemic Injustice?
              Meline Papazian, University College Dublin

              Hilkje Hänel, Free University Berlin

14:00 – 14:50  Horizontal Attention and Epistemic Repair
              Gaile Pohlhaus, Miami University

14:50 – 15:40  Rectifying Hermeneutical Injustice in the “Comfort Women” Issue through Interactional and Structural Acknowledgment
              Seunghyun Song, University of Graz

15:55 – 16:45  TBA
              Maria Baghramian, University College Dublin

Organized by | Melanie Altanian | melanie.altanian@philo.unibe.ch | in cooperation with the Institute of Philosophy | University of Bern